eadh

EUROPEAN ASSOCIATION FOR DIGITAL HUMANITIES

The EADH - European Association for Digital Humanities (http://eadh.org/) was founded in 1973 and is today the longest standing DH organization. With close to 850 individual members EADH is the largest DH organization in the world; its journal DSH - Digital Sscholarship in the Humanities (published by Oxford University Press) is also the leading academic print publication in the field.

goals

The main goal of EADH is to support its individual members by

- representing the interests of the DH community in Europe and beyond
- collecting and distributing DH information
- organizing conferences and workshops
- building networks and regional or interest based organizations across Europe
- providing grants for smaller research projects or events and bursaries for young scholars

context

EADH is also a founding member of the international Alliance of Digital Humanities Organizations (ADHO) which serves the international DH community in various ways, including

- the annual international DH conference (http://eadh.org/conferences)
- several DH publications, including the subscription journal DSH and open access journals such as DHQ - Digital Humanities Quarterly (http://eadh.org/publications/all)
- the recognition of DH achievements through prizes (http://eadh.org/awards)
- a shared technical infrastructure hosting all organization websites, data bases, and other services.

benefits to individual members

The most important benefit of an EADH membership is, of course, to be part of the international DH scientific community! But there are also specific advantages, including

- significantly reduced registration fees at all conferences held by any organization in the ADHO network, especially at the annual DH conferences
- eligibility for young-scholar bursaries, project grants, prizes, etc.
- voting rights in EADH and the right to be nominated for offices in EADH and ADHO
- optional: a subscription to the journal DSH.

benefits to Associate Organizations

EADH also welcomes linking to "Partner Organizations" and supports emerging as well as established regional and language based DH organizations by offering them the status of "Associate Organization" (http://eadh.org/about). Individual members of an Associate Organization are automatically also full members of EADH and therefore enjoy all the benefits of a regular EADH member. In addition, the Associate Organization has full access to all the administrative and technical ressources available to all ADHO sub-organizations.

eadh

EUROPEAN ASSOCIATION FOR DIGITAL HUMANITIES

The EADH - European Association for Digital Humanities (http://eadh.org/) was founded in 1973 and is today the longest standing DH organization. With close to 850 individual members EADH is the largest DH organization in the world; its journal DSH - Digital Sscholarship in the Humanities (published by Oxford University Press) is also the leading academic print publication in the field.

goals

The main goal of EADH is to support its individual members by

- representing the interests of the DH community in Europe and beyond
- collecting and distributing DH information
- organizing conferences and workshops
- building networks and regional or interest based organizations across Europe
- providing grants for smaller research projects or events and bursaries for young scholars

context

EADH is also a founding member of the international Alliance of Digital Humanities Organizations (ADHO) which serves the international DH community in various ways, including

- the annual international DH conference (http://eadh.org/conferences)
- several DH publications, including the subscription journal DSH and open access journals such as DHQ - Digital Humanities Quarterly (http://eadh.org/publications/all)
- the recognition of DH achievements through prizes (http://eadh.org/awards)
- a shared technical infrastructure hosting all organization websites, data bases, and other services.

benefits to individual members

The most important benefit of an EADH membership is, of course, to be part of the international DH scientific community! But there are also specific advantages, including

- significantly reduced registration fees at all conferences held by any organization in the ADHO network, especially at the annual DH conferences
- eligibility for young-scholar bursaries, project grants, prizes, etc.
- voting rights in EADH and the right to be nominated for offices in EADH and ADHO
- optional: a subscription to the journal DSH.

benefits to Associate Organizations

EADH also welcomes linking to "Partner Organizations" and supports emerging as well as established regional and language based DH organizations by offering them the status of "Associate Organization" (http://eadh.org/about). Individual members of an Associate Organization are automatically also full members of EADH and therefore enjoy all the benefits of a regular EADH member. In addition, the Associate Organization has full access to all the administrative and technical ressources available to all ADHO sub-organizations.