

EADH membership report

June 2017

General considerations

I need to start this report with a general premise: the complexity of the current structure of ADHO and its affiliated organizations and the lack of a unified system for managing the membership makes the task of accounting the overall state of membership a cumbersome task. This is true also for EADH, of course, since most of the complexity issues is due to the AOs different methods of considering active members or to the overlaps of individual membership. So the figures of this report must be considered with a certain level of “tolerance”.

At the end of May 2017 ADHO’s constituent organizations have 1198 individual members (of which 1125 approximately are unique individuals). This amount to small absolute decrease of 68 members since last year on November (-5%), and to a small increase of 45 since June 2016 (+4%). CenterNet has 28 members, and in this case the decrease is more remarkable, amounting at 20 (-45%) since last year.

These overall figures, nonetheless, are the combined effect of the good performances of the new CO Humanistica and of the AOs affiliated to EADH, while the founding COs of ADHO show a significant diminution of their attractivity, as much as the Joint membership.

As for the type of membership, Membership only is the preferred route, with about 25% of individual members choosing to subscribe to the DSH journal.

EADH subscriber and membership numbers

EADH’s total legal membership (including joint members) at the moment of writing this report, is 793, with the following composition:

- EADH direct: 140
- AIUCD: 118
- DHd: 266
- NDH: 81
- JOINT: 188

This is a noticeable decrease of 206 units since November 2016 (999). This decrease is determined as by the contraction in direct membership to EADH - now at 140 (-37) - and in Joint membership, as by the relative decrease of some AOs’ membership (notably that of NDH). Nonetheless, under any perspective, EADH membership amount at almost 50% of ADHO membership taken as a whole, and is by far the largest CO.

The average distribution of members between AOs and COs inside ADHO galaxy is confirmed: DHd is the single autonomous biggest Association. Germany is the country where the bigger number of ADHO members reside, followed by USA, France (thanks to the affiliation of Humanistica as CO) and Italy (these figures are not completely error free, but the overall landscape is this).

All members of the EADH Executive Committee, Officers and President have a current membership.

ADHO membership data

Overall individual members: 1198

Overall unique members after deduplication of members that have joined more than one Association (Mostly members of one AO and one CO/Joint): 1125 ca.
